"Does not every one know that whether this Manpin bill becomes a law or not, the young man who has a tendency to gamble will the overy hand the opportunity to indulge the desire, and to become a victim to the vice? You cannot legislate inordity into as you cannot legislate temptation from the world. It is the fire that tries men's souls, Without it we would have a race of milkeops rather than of men. But, gentlemen, I ask why has this moral crusade stopped so short? Why have you made it an offence to bet on a horse-race, and yet allow the horse race? You legislate against the sin, and yet you embrace the

MR. PILCHER SPEAKS. When Mr. Reddy took his seat Mr. Pilcher was given the fleor, and in the outset he drew the attention of the House to the statutes bearing on horse-racing. He showed that in 1887 no laws bearing on the subject existed in Virginia. He told of the pool-room which thrived for the control of Twelfth.

He shartes learning on laws bearing on the subject existed in Virginia. He told of the pool-room which thrived for some time on the corner of Tweifth and Bank streets in this city, and made a humorous allusien to the men who frequented it. He called attention to the fact that the preachers did not cry that down. He cited the law on gambling as laid down in the Code, which provides that one may gamble to the extent of $50 in any twenty-four hours, and said that was intended to let out the hoys who played their $5-cent-ante games. He then called attention to the stare-

Mr. Pilcher thought the continuous racing on the tracks in Alexandria county should be broken up, "but," said he, "why go back to where we were before the Mushbach law was amended? Why not learn something from experience? There are some people who I know want to break up racing, there are even people who wast to break up the liquor traffic, but people are still drinking. Our statutes do not prohibit sin, they simply punish it. We have enacted haws against all the sins in the catalogue and all the laws are being broken. So it is with this Maupin bill, Enact it into a law and it will be broken and regularly disregarded."

Mr. Keesee, in vigorous language, advocated the Maupin bill. He was, he said, not only in favor of all its provisions, but he would have endorsed it if it had forbidden wagering of every kind. He was a preacher, and had always preached against gamiders, and would continue to do so. The clergy had been ridicated for their connection with

Mr. Willard next addressed the House, and said that it appeared to him that the question of racing and prob-selling were separate and distinct. He thought that all legislation should be looked at primarily from a moral standpoint. He referred to the remarks of Mr. Reddy that temptation was necessary to keep the youth of the hand from becoming milksops, and deried that any such necessity existed. He gave a brief history of pool-selling in the State. He was interrogated by Mr. Pilcher, and said that he was not opposed to horse-racing that he was not opposed to horse-racing for a purse, but was unquestionably op-posed to all species of betting. The offer-ing of a purse on a racing contest, be stated, was similar in many respects to or the force of have occupied the time offering of a metal on a scholastic contest. NEW YORK STOCK MARKET. NEW YORK, February 6.-According to bunkers, the good effect of the success of the bond loan will be reflected in a further improvement, not only at the Stock Exchange, but in the commercial world as well. Already there is more disposition on the part of the banks to discount paper, now that it is known that the new loan is a success. This departure on the part of the capitalists will be welcomed in the up-town business ircles, for the reason that the buying or circles, for the reason that the booms of paper has been practically suspended for nearly a month. Only Sheiburne's warehouse had a bright loose break to-day, and that was a very good one. Buyers seemed very anxious for tobacco, and bought freely with lively competition, and good prices throughout. Another sale to-morrow.

Dark breaks amounted to about 50,000 pounds, with 9 3-tc. highest. No fine grades offered, but the better grades were in fairly large supply, and trices ranged better than yesterday on all grades. The break was largely on low grades to-day. The usual sale to-morrow. We are glad to note quite a good demand for all grades of brights, especially wrappers. Sales were much larger to-day, and prices are very satisfactory.

CHICAGO PRODUCE MARKET.

CHICAGO, ILL., February 6.—The recent erratic action of the wheat market has had the effect of limiting the number of outside orders, to-day's trade being principally local scalping, with changing fortunes to the operators. Yesterday afternoon's curb was excited and higher, the explanation being found in a private cable from Liverpool, which stated that European countries new depended entirely on America for their supplies, other experting nations having no wheat available for shipment. The strength which developed was carried over to the regular market this morning, but the advance made was not maintained, another private cable stating that Russia and Argentina were offering more freely being received. For an hour after the start, there was a fair degree of activity, but after that the market drifted into dulness, with prices bolding fairly steady.

May wheat opened at from $7.50 Sec. sold between 88 1-8 and 67 1-8c., and closed at $61 - 2366 5-8c. - 1-861 4c. higher than yesterday, Cash wheat was steady.

Without varying much in price, corn presented quite a creditable appearance of strength Even when wheat was in a condition of weakness, with prices melting away, corn maintained its position, without, however, at any time exhibiting a marked inclination to advance. The firmness was due to the late storm and impassable roads.

May corn opened at 29 5-8c., sold between 30 5-8620 3-4 and 30 3-8630 1-2c., and closed at 30 1-2c.-1-861-4c. higher than yesterday, Cash corn was firm and 1-tc. higher; the way store the sustaining quality. Trade was light, and the range of prices marrow, May corn opened at 20 courage, and prices advanced moderately on buying. The gain was sustained afterwards, with business dull and unimportant. At the close May pork was 19c. higher than yesterday, May lard higher, and May ribs 50%c, higher.

Hemoved His Teeth to Say Quacks.

Removed His Teeth to Say Quacks,

Chicago Tribune.)

Old Mr. Starr. of Williams county, made an earnest speech in the Ohio House of Representatives Wednesday, in opposition to the Kimmel bill, regulating the practice of medicine, During his remarks, he attempted to say "quaedis." but the word got lost in his folse teeth. After several frantic attempts to get the word out, Mr. Starr angrily yanked the teeth out, in full view of the House, and slammed them down on his deak, remarking: "I'll jest throw them teeth out." The House shricked with laughter, but, in solite of the speech the bill passed. The lone vote against the bill was that of the man who threw away his teeth.
